

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE CLEARS THE WAY FOR EXELON-CONSTELLATION MERGER

CHICAGO AND BALTIMORE (Dec. 21, 2011) – The U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) today cleared the way for the merger of Exelon Corporation (NYSE: EXC) and Constellation Energy (NYSE: CEG), in connection with its review of the transaction under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act.

The DOJ's Antitrust Division filed court papers today seeking approval by the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia with regard to the merger. These papers detail the conditions agreed to by DOJ and Exelon and Constellation for the companies to merge. Upon the court's order adopting the proposed conditions, Exelon and Constellation will be free to close the transaction, pending any other regulatory approvals required.

Consistent with Exelon's merger application to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), in these papers, the company makes a number of commitments to mitigate market power concerns, including: divestiture of certain assets, granting DOJ the right to approve the buyers of those assets, assurances about how the merged company will bid its units into the PJM markets pending divestiture, and deadlines for the sale of those assets.

"With DOJ's action, we are pleased to have reached yet another important milestone in completing our merger with Constellation," said Exelon President and COO Christopher M. Crane. "We continue to expect that we will finalize the merger in early 2012."

"Our proposed merger has cleared two state regulators and the shareholders of both companies, and now the Department of Justice has cleared the way for the transaction," said Constellation Chairman and CEO Mayo A. Shattuck III. "We've made considerable progress toward closing the merger and will continue working to move the process forward as smoothly as possible."

The merger has been approved by the New York Public Service Commission, the Public Utility Commission of Texas and shareholders of Exelon and Constellation. It also requires regulatory approvals by FERC, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Maryland Public Service Commission.

In a merger settlement with the State of Maryland, the Maryland Energy Administration (MEA), the City of Baltimore and the Baltimore Building and Construction Trades Council announced Dec. 15, Exelon, Constellation and Baltimore Gas and Electric Company agreed to provide a package of benefits totaling more than $1 billion and expected to create more than 6,000 jobs in Maryland.

The Exelon-Constellation merger will combine Exelon's environmentally advantaged generation fleet with Constellation Energy's industry-leading customer-facing businesses. The companies announced their agreement to merge on April 28.

Cautionary Statements Regarding Forward-Looking Information

Except for the historical information contained herein, certain of the matters discussed in this communication constitute "forward-looking statements" within the meaning of the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, both as amended by the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Words such as "may," "will," "anticipate," "estimate," "expect," "project," "intend," "plan," "believe," "target," "forecast," and words and terms of similar substance used in connection with any discussion of future plans, actions, or events identify forward-looking statements. These forward-looking statements include, but are not limited to, statements regarding benefits of the proposed merger of Exelon Corporation (Exelon) and Constellation Energy Group, Inc. (Constellation), integration plans and expected synergies, the expected timing of completion of the transaction, anticipated future financial and operating performance and results, including estimates for growth. These statements are based on the current expectations of management of Exelon and Constellation, as applicable. There are a number of risks and uncertainties that could cause actual results to differ materially from the forward-looking statements included in this communication regarding the proposed merger. For example, (1) the companies may be unable to obtain regulatory approvals required for the merger, or required regulatory approvals may delay the merger or result in the imposition of conditions that could have a material adverse effect on the combined company or cause the companies to abandon the merger; (2) conditions to the closing of the merger may not be satisfied; (3) an unsolicited offer of another company to acquire assets or capital stock of Exelon or Constellation could interfere with the merger; (4) problems may arise in successfully integrating the businesses of the companies, which may result in the combined company not operating as effectively and efficiently as expected; (5) the combined company may be unable to achieve cost-cutting synergies or it may take longer than expected to achieve those synergies; (6) the merger may involve unexpected costs, unexpected liabilities or unexpected delays, or the effects of purchase accounting may be different from the companies' expectations; (7) the credit ratings of the combined company or its subsidiaries may be different from what the companies expect; (8) the businesses of the companies may suffer as a result of uncertainty surrounding the merger; (9) the companies may not realize the values expected to be obtained for properties expected or required to be divested; (10) the industry may be subject to future regulatory or legislative actions that could adversely affect the companies; and (11) the companies may be adversely affected by other economic, business, and/or competitive factors. Other unknown or unpredictable factors could also have material adverse effects on future results, performance or achievements of Exelon, Constellation or the combined company. Discussions of some of these other important factors and assumptions are contained in Exelon's and Constellation's respective filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), and available at the SEC's website at www.sec.gov, including: (1) Exelon's 2010 Annual Report on Form 10-K in (a) ITEM 1A.
